Chalkliners' New Home

While amateur theater groups in the Greater Springfield area rent or borrow stages upon which to present their art, the Chalkliners of Agawam are creating their own theater.

Just doing their own thing, the veteran Agawam troupe has a solid reputation for coming up with innovations that please their audiences. Although the new theater will be a real innovation among amateur groups, Mrs. Doreen J. Deliso points out that the kind of inventiveness required for a small group to create a theater is backed up by large measures of sweat equity and plagued by a community-theater bug-a-boo known as pocket-book slump.

In order to prevent the latter, the Chalkliners are leaning heavily on the former. Other economies promise to place the group immediately in a better financial position than they experienced when they were renting halls and clubhouse space.

The theater is made possible through the generosity of Jim and Mickie Sgorbati, who provided the use of a barn and land at the rear of their 1822 Main Street, Agawam homestead.

Situated beside a grassy knoll, the buildings are approached over a rustic wooden bridge that spans a nearby brook. But the lovely pastoral scene on the outside tells nothing of the hard construction work the Chalkliners have done on the inside.

Now rehearsal lines of "Tunnel Of Love", a comedy by Joseph Fields and Peter DeVries compete against the sound of hammers and saws as construction crews race with production crews to beat a November 22 deadline when the play will begin a three-day run.

Mrs. Deliso says she is confident that the race will be a dead heat.

"We'll be ready, because that's the way we do things," she says, adding, "If providence helps us, we won't let our audience down."

Catholic Women's Annual Communion Supper

The Catholic Women's Club of Agawam will hold their annual Communion Supper at St. John the Evangelist Church Mon., Nov. 11. Celebrant at the mass at 6:30 will be Rev. Co-chairmen of the event, Mrs. Bernard LeDuc and Mrs. James Walsh are being assisted by Mrs. Edgar Wilson, Mrs. Alfred Dugan, Mrs. Theodore Hare, Mrs. Peter Longo, Mrs. Stephen Olivo, Mrs. Anthony Viamari, Mrs. Charles Beshaw, Mrs. Bernard Hornick and Mrs. Richard Knight.

Only three Presidents have come directly from Congress. They were James A. Garfield and Warren G. Harding, both senators from Ohio, and John F. Kennedy, senator from Mass.

WMECo film on Biafra to local schools

"Nigeria and Biafra -- The Story Behind the Struggle" is the title of the second issue of the 1968-69 Screen News Digest film series provided by Western Mass. Electric Co. to more than 70 junior and senior high schools in the area.

The in-depth report on the Nigerian civil war concludes that "there will be no victory for anyone" in the grim struggle. By a conservative estimate, 1000 persons a day are dying of starvation. Already, famine has caused brain damage in many of Biafra's children, and there is genuine concern that an entire generation of the Ibo people who live in the Eastern sector will be wiped out.

The film points out that Nigeria, since the murder of Prime Minister Abubakar Tafawa Balewa in 1966 by five young Ibo officers, is far different from the fast-developing territory that in 1960 won its independence from Great Britain to become Africa's most promising country under a coalition government.

There will be seven more films in the Screen News Digest series, cited twice by the Freedoms Foundation for its "outstanding contribution to a better understanding of the American way of life", and distributed monthly during the school year without charge by WMECO to schools in its service area.

CAN POLLUTION CAUSE CHILDREN'S CANCER

Chemicals which pollute the air we breathe, the water we drink, and the food we eat are posing a threat of cancer and of dangerous genetic mutations, Dr. Samuel S. Epstein warned at the recent 21st birthday of the Children's Cancer Research Foundation.

Addressing an international meeting at the Jimmy Fund Building in Boston marking the "coming of age" of the Foundation, Dr. Epstein emphasized the importance of stepping up research to study these potential dangers. He said that society must decide how much danger it is willing to accept, and balance the benefits which food additives, pesticides, etc., offer to modern society against the hazards these chemicals create.

The threats due to pollution include poisoning, deformation of the embryo, cancer and genetic damage. "Many human cancers are due to chemical pollutants and hence are ultimately preventable. Also, genetic effects of chemical pollutants are probably of greater importance than the more familiar hazards of X-rays," said Dr. Epstein, who is Chief of the Laboratories of Environmental Toxicology and Carcinogenesis at the Children's Cancer Research Foundation. Dr. Epstein is also a research associate at the Children's Hospital Medical Center and Harvard Medical School.

The Children's Cancer Research Foundation in the Jimmy Fund Building is doing research to screen chemical pollutants to see which may be suspected of causing cancer of mutations, then to test those chemicals under suspicion to see if they cause cancer or mutations in mice. Dr. Epstein points out that although mice are obviously far from being human, the results obtained so far show the urgent need for more research at once, before our already serious environmental pollution increases.

"With increasing urbanization and industrialization of modern society, our environment has become progressively contaminated with a complex array of chemical pollutants which pose a wide range of potential hazards," Dr. Epstein said.

"The major categories of these chemicals are represented by pollutants of air, particularly with products of fuel combustion or on a more personal level with tobacco smoke; pollutants of water, with agricultural or industrial effluents; and pollutants of food, with additives, pesticides, or naturally-occurring plant or fungal poisons. Additional, but more restricted, types of exposure can occur occupationally, from contamination with industrial chemicals, and therapeutically, particularly from the widespread use of certain drugs.

"As many of these chemicals, such as certain food additives or pesticides, play a necessary role in modern life, the recognition and measurement of the various hazards they pose and the definition of the degree of acceptability of these hazards is of obvious practical importance."

Report from THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

FIREARMS AND THE LAW Your Rights and Obligations Under the New Mass. Firearms Control Law

FIREARMS ID CARDS

After Jan. 1, 1969, you must have a Firearms I.D. card

- to own any firearm (including rifles and shotguns)
- to purchase a rifle or shotgun
- to purchase ammunition

You may obtain a Frms. ID Card from your local P.D. any time after Oct. 21, 1968.

A Frms ID Card costs $2 and is good for five years.

Any Mass. resident who is over 21 may apply for a card. (Those under 21 but over 15 must have the written permission of their parents or guardians to apply for a card.)

The police must issue you a Frms. ID Card unless...

- you have been convicted of a felony or released from a state or federal prison for a felony conviction within the past 5 yrs.

- you have been confined to a hospital or institution for mental illness (except where you have a certificate of competence).

- you have been convicted of a narcotics violation or are a drug addict or alcoholic (except where you produce a certificate of competence five years after you have been discharged from treatment or confinement).

And, your card will be automatically renewed upon sworn application and payment of the fee unless you are disqualified for any of the reasons listed above.

TRANSFERS OF GUNS

If you sell (or trade or give away) a rifle, shotgun, pistol or revolver you must tell the Dept. of Public Safety...

- the make, model and serial No. of the gun (after April 1, 1969, all new guns sold in Mass. will be required to have serial no's.

- the name, address and Frms ID Card number of your customer (or the recipient of the rifle or shotgun) and your own Frms ID Card number.

REMEMBER, you may not transfer any rifle or shotgun to anyone who does not have either a valid Frms ID Card or a valid license to carry a Frm. (handgun).

Violation of this or any other part of this law can bring a fine of up to $500 or a year in jail for the 1st offense and $1,000 or 2 yrs in jail for the 2nd.

If a gun is lost or stolen...

--you must by law notify your local police and the Dept. of Public Safety at once. They will help you recover your guns if you help them keep track of them.

HANDGUNS

To carry (or purchase) a handgun... you must have a special license.

If you already have a valid license to carry a pistol or revolver, you need not obtain a Frms. ID Card. If you wish to purchase a pistol or revolver, you must obtain from your local licensing authority a permit to purchase and a Frms ID Card or a license to carry. Requirements for a license to carry handguns are much stricter than those for a Frms ID Card, and the police are required by law to investigate the background of anyone who applies for a license to carry a Frm. (handgun) or a permit to purchase.

Remember, you may not transfer a handgun to anyone who does not have a permit to carry a Frm. (handgun) or a permit to purchase and a Frms. ID Card. Violation of this section of the law may bring a jail sentence of up to two years. DENIAL, REVOCATION AND APPEAL

If you are denied a Frms. ID Card or license to carry a Frm. or if your ID card or license to carry a fr. is revoked...

--you may appeal to the District Court. The Court has the authority to determine whether or not the denial or revocation was for just cause.

If your frms. ID Card or license to carry a fr. is revoked...

-- your guns will not be confiscated. They will be held by the police, who will allow you to dispose of them by sale or transfer to anyone holding a valid frms. ID card or license to carry a fr. depending upon the type of gun to be transferred.

A NOTE TO COLLECTORS

No frms. ID Card or license to carry a fr. is required to possess or purchase any legal gun, including matchlock, flintlock, percussion cap, made prior to 1897, or replica thereof, or any legal gun made before 1898 which uses fixed ammo for which ammo is no longer made or available in the United States. Remember, you must have a license to carry a fr. (handgun), even an antique fr. or replica.

Rudy Altobelli's Reasons

Dem Candidate for Assessor

Reasons for running -- First, I have spent my last 13 years in the tax field both as a teacher and as a tax consultant. Thus I feel competent for the position. Second, I think that property taxes must be and can be lowered. They must be lowered to enable our property owners, particularly our senior citizens who must manage with their retirement income. And they can be lowered if we all make an effort in this direction.

What can assessors do to lower taxes? -- Plenty. The assessors are the ones who should pick up the ball and rally the town departments to work for this goal. Joint cooperation is necessary to accomplish this. If every dept' worked to accomplish this objective it will make it easier to succeed. But someone must initiate this drive. I feel it should be the assessor.

My ideas for lowering taxes -- First, I would work to develop our industrial park. We have over 500 acres available for industry. We have to encourage industrial growth in this area. If this can be accomplished, the tax revenue from industry would ease the homeowners tax liability.

My experiences in town government -- I have served as a town meeting member in Agawam and West Springfield for 10 years, and 5 years on the Park and Playground Board. Also, I have served and am presently a member of the Agawam Finance Committee.

Q. How can I remove old wall paper from a wall?

A. Mix up a quart of flour paste and add it to a pail of piping hot water. Swash the mixture all over the wall and let it soak in. Being thick, it won't dry very quickly so you'll have plenty of time to scrape or peel the old paper off.

Q. What is an easy way to darn a hole in a flimsy curtain?

A. Cover the hole with a piece of white paper and run back and forth over it with the sewing machine needle a number of times. Then launder the curtain to dissolve the paper, and a neat darn remains.

The President who served the shortest time in office was William Henry Harrison, who died one month after his inauguration. Some persons claim that David Rice Atchison, a Senate president pro tempore, served as acting President for one day. That was March 4, 1849, a Sunday -- and Zachary Taylor refused to be inaugurated on the Sabbath.

Gastroenterology

Diseases of the gastrointestinal tract, ranging from the simple "belly ache" to the widespread peptic ulcer, are being singled out for a revitalized research attack.

In a recent conference held at the National Institutes of Health, 70 representatives of professional and scientific agencies proclaimed digestive diseases to be a national health problem, and drew up plans for intensifying research.

In spite of some remarkable examples of scientific progress during the past 15 years, the representatives agreed that the attack on digestive diseases has suffered because of a relative lack of public concern. These disorders have received less attention from scientists and laymen, for example, than the so-called "killer diseases" such as cancer, stroke, and heart disease.

Diseases of the gastrointestinal tract take their toll in terms of long-range disability as well as mortality. The disorders themselves are numerous.

Peptic ulcer strikes about 14 million Americans. Each day, about 4,000 more people develop an ulcer, and every year about 10,000 persons die of complications related to this disease. Lost man hours and direct medical expenses because of peptic ulcers are estimated at $500 million annually.

One conference proposal suggested involving a greater number of scientists in digestive disease research. Investigation of the basic mechanisms underlying digestive processes has paid off in the past and undoubtedly will continue to add important new knowledge.

The Federal Government's program of research in gastroenterology, centered in the National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases (NIAMD), has recently yielded a number of significant research findings.

Investigators receiving grant support from this Institute, for example, have determined the chemical nature and structure of gastrin, a hormone which stimulates secretion of gastric juices. The scientists were then able to synthesize this hormone, an accomplishment that is especially important to peptic ulcer research. It is known that the stomach of a peptic ulcer patient secretes excessive amounts of digestive juices, but the mechanisms controlling these secretions are still obscure. With the synthesis of gastrin, investigators now have an important link in these mechanisms.

In studies by Institute-supported investigators and others, it has been demonstrated that unrecognized milk intolerance in otherwise normal adults and in many patients with multiple mystifying bowel symptoms is caused by a deficiency of an intestinal enzyme known as lactase. Lactase digests lactose, or "milk sugar," converting it into needed nutrients. Prior to this discovery, most cases of milk intolerance were blamed on a specific allergy to protein in milk.

These findings are just two examples of results derived from recent research. Hopefully, an intensified research attack on digestive diseases will bring many more.

Following a tender marriage proposal and acceptance, an Arizona State University student gave his girl a diamond ring. Then he handed her another package and said, "I guess you might as well start saving the green stamps that came with it."

Hosaga Day at Spfld College

SPRINGFIELD, MASS. - This weekend will mark the 21st birthday of Springfield College's nationally known Hosaga Indian Tribe Day. The event will be the highlight of the Fall Homecoming Weekend, Nov. 1-3, and more than 170 alumni and guests will attend the Hosaga Reunion Dinner in the Cheney Hall Dining Commons Sat. night Nov. 2.

A special salute will be given Professor and Mrs. Edgar Hubbard, of E. Longmeadow, the founder and advisor to the Hosaga Tribe. The reception in honor of Hubbard will start the Sat. eve program with dinner to follow. Asked to describe the Indian Tribe, Hubbard, who recently retired as mathematics professor at SC said, "The Hosagas are a group of students who travel throughout the country performing authentic American Indian dances and rituals. These students are dedicated to keeping alive the Indian customs and traditions which are part of the American heritage."

One of the outstanding contributions the tribe has made to Springfield College has been the establishment of an unrestricted scholarship for student financial aid. A substantial portion of money raised performing has been given to the college and since 1956, when the scholarship was started, the fund has grown to more than $12,000.

At least six charter members and twelve former chiefs are expected to attend the reunion. Over 21 years of the Tribe's existence, more than 500 students have been members. Toastmaster for the dinner will be Neil Snyder of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, a Chief in 1963. Mr. Harold Hillard of Rockville, Connecticut, the Tribe's first Chief, will be at the head table.

A special Pow Wow for all Hosagas will be held at East Campus Saturday afternoon (November 2) under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paige of East Longmeadow. Paige and his wife are both Hosagas, Paige was Chief in 1964.

TODAY'S AGRIFACT: Broccoli, a quality crop grown by Bay State farmers, is a plant of the cabbage group, and at one time name broccoli referred to a type of cauliflower which, in mild climates, was left in the ground over winter to mature in the spring. The present day broccoli produces not a thick, solid white head-like cauliflower, but a number of smaller, looser green heads which are especially delicious, when with the smaller surrounding leaves, are boiled and served with a hollandaise sauce. Light frost improves the quality so harvesting can continue well into the winter.

Policeman: "If his wife shot him, it must have been at close range."

Detective: "Then there's powder marks on him."

Policeman: "Sure. That's why she shot him."

How To Store Mower

NEW YORK (NEA)—An important part of the transition to cooler weather is the proper storage of tools. In no case is this more important than it is with your power mower.

You'll probably continue cutting your grass until it doesn't grow higher than 3 inches. Yet, if you just park the mower in the garage or a corner of the basement you'll find that by the next time you use it rust or gum or both will have taken over. You may even find yourself in the market for a new mower.

Remove Gas

Start by removing every drop of gasoline from the tank, fuel line and carburetor. Even over a short period, gasoline will evaporate leaving behind a gummy residue that will clog everything.

Run the mower with an almost empty tank until it stops of its own accord. This should leave the carburetor dry and clear. Make certain the tank and line are drained.

There are several ways to do this, depending on the mower. Sometimes unscrewing the gas tank shut-off fitting will accomplish it. Some tanks are removable, others must be drained by turning over the entire mower.

Once you've run the mower dry remove the spark plug wire for all further work. It's the only safe way to work on a mower.

If your mower has a separate oil tank, remove the plug and drain it.

Clean the dirt away from around the spark plug and remove it. Pour in a spoonful of clean oil and turn the engine over slowly several times. This will spread the oil over the cylinder walls. Replace the plug.

Clean the mower thoroughly. This will prevent rust from forming.

Reel Mowers

On reel mowers, cut away the grass that gets wrapped around the reel shaft. Clean off cutting edges. On rotary mowers remove all the caked dirt and grass from the underside of the blade housing.

Follow manufacturer's instructions for lubricating your mower. Wipe metal parts with an oil-soaked rag. You can protect cutting edges with a coating of grease.

The mower should be stored in a dry place. Contact with a concrete or gravel floor won't do the tires any good. Best way to store the mower is by resting it on a couple of scrap 2x4s in such a way that the weight is taken off the tires entirely.

For further protection wrap the mower base and engine with a piece of heavy paper, canvas, old blanket or similar material.

Come spring, if you've stored your mower properly, all you will have to do is add gas and oil.

From Twi To Bobo

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Twi, Bobo, Kran and Kru may sound like exotic tongues, but not to the people who speak them as native languages. Twi (spoken in Ghana), Bobo (Upper Volta), Kran and Kru (Liberia) are among the lesser-known languages now being taught by the Peace Corps to its Volunteers.

These minor languages range from Aklanon (Philippines) to Zomboangueno (another Philippines tongue) and include four Arabic dialects, Ghanese, Ga, Cameroonian Pidgin and Caribbean Creole.

Volunteers for the Micronesian islands alone might learn any of the following: Kusaie, Marshallese, Ponapean, Trukese (including the lagoon dialect), Ulithi, Woleaian or Yapese.
